PREMIER EUROCASE – PRIMARY KITCHEN'S PARENT COMPANY RECEIVES INVESTMENT FROM SATURN FIVE

DENVER, COLO. — Primary Kitchen is pleased to announce that Premier EuroCase, its parent company, has taken on a capital partner, Saturn Five. Saturn Five is a Denver-based investor group that invests in enduringly profitable businesses with distinct competitive advantages in their industry. Saturn Five is committed to a "buy and hold" investment strategy, partnering with owner-operators to ensure their legacy, support existing management, and advance company strategies.

Premier EuroCase was founded by Andy Wilzoch in 1993 and has been a leader in the cabinetry, retail fixtures, and laminated panel space for 30 years. Following the transaction, Andy will continue as an owner in the company, alongside Saturn Five.

"Having built Premier EuroCase over my career, and recently launching Primary Kitchen, I knew it was time to bring on a strategic capital partner, who can help grow the company in its next chapter. However, it's 'business as usual' around here, and we do not have any plans to change how we service our customers or work with suppliers." Andy Wilzoch said.

Saturn Five founder and managing partner Max Anderson said, "We are thrilled to invest in Premier EuroCase and partner with Andy. The company has a great reputation for its exceptionally high product quality. The manufacturing operation that Andy has built is truly unique."

The terms of the deal were not disclosed.
